

Applications for the Electric Vehicle (EV) Industry

Precision dispensing solutions for battery cell manufacturing

The battery is the key to the performance of an electric vehicle. Its lifetime and quality determine the driving range and overall safety. As a result, design engineers spend significant time optimizing the Battery Management System and the thermal management of the entire battery pack.

Nordson EFD helps dispense thermally conductive adhesives, thermal interface materials, and other types of structural adhesives within the battery pack. Our broad range of precision dispensing solutions include benchtop dispensers, dispense and spray valves, innovative jetting technologies, and automated dispensing robots.

Optimize Your Dispensing Process

Industry estimates indicate that the battery is one third of the cost of an electric vehicle. As the market demand for EV cars continues to increase, cell manufacturers need to address this demand by using efficient manufacturing processes to reduce the cost of the battery pack.

Nordson EFD delivers precise, reliable fluid dispensing systems to help manufacturers meet their efficiency needs. Our dispensing systems deliver highly repeatable, consistent fluid deposits while reducing material waste, rejects, and rework.
